

Design in Black and White

A history of black and white in fashion, design, architecture and interiors Daring, dramatic, and full of inspirational ideas and icons, including Coco Chanel, Catherine Memmi, Christian Liaigre, Mies van der Rohe, Frederic Mechiche, Anouska Hempel and Giorgio Armani The shades black and white have for centuries represented inimitable luxury and unparalleled glamour. Think of tuxedos and little black dresses, or beautifully styled interiors featuring a mix of high white period ceilings and black, mid-century modern furniture. Designers have known about the power of this impeccable pairing for years. Design in Black & White features the cool beauty and crisp, graphic edge of these two tones, and celebrates the design worlds most popular but understated shades with stunning photography of gorgeous penthouses, apartments, rural retreats, and commercial interiors from around the world.

We've started our countdown to National Handbag Day on October 10, and that means we'll have special features for you every day, right up to the big event! Today, we're here to talk about the intersection of celebrity and accessories, and more specifically, how the two can become intertwined in public consciousness for years. The kinds of stars who carry a particular bag do a lot to shape the market's perception of it and the designer who created it, which is why so many brands give out free bags to stars now: they're hoping to create positive associations. In the cases you see below, though, things came along a little bit more naturally. You can't rush love, after all. Think of a bag-celeb duo we missed? Let us know in the comments!
